Viet Nam's Government Tightens Security In Wake Of Fire Suicide

'Dragon Lady' Is Power Mad, Father Says

WASHINGTON (AP) - On the eve of Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu's arrival in this country, her father accused South Viet Nam's ruling family Sunday of misusing American aid to suppress the Vietnamese people.

Former Ambassador Tran Van Chuong who resigned his post last Aug. 22 in protest, said in an interview he had a duty to present the viewpoint of the Vietnamese people to America "because in Viet Nam they can only do it by burning themselves to death or risking mass arrest."

Daughter "Headline Catcher" He described his daughter, the sister in law of President Ngo Dinh Diem, as the South Viet Nam government's "strongest headline catcher." He predicted her three-week speaking tour in this country would amount to an all-out propaganda campaign in behalf of the Diem regime.

In a separate radio-television interview with Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., recorded for New York stations, Chuong called Mrs. Nhu's reference to junior U.S. officers as "little soldiers of fortune" a "sad case of power madness."

Keating called for a full-scale U.S. Servicemen "Gagged"

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) -The government squeezed security tight in Saigon on Sunday apparently to head off another wave of pro-Buddhist demonstrations. U.S. sources expressed the belief police had conducted a campaign of arrests overnight.

Witnesses reported they had seen two Vietnamese teen-agers pulled off their bicycles as they rode past the U.S. Information Agency office, handcuffed and taken away by police. A third youth was seized when he rode past later. Witnesses said the arrests seemed unprovoked. Diem Expected To Speak

Police and security forces made a careful predawn search of the square in front of the National Assembly where President Ngo Diem is expected to make an address when the newly elected chamber opens Monday.

Searchers looked down manholes near the assembly building and checked every flower pot lining the steps leading to the main entrance. They went over the entire square with mine detectors.

Searches also were carried out near the U.S. Embassy and the central market where a young Honduran Boss Buddhist monk committed flaming suicide Saturday in protest against the government. The Buddhists, in an open campaign that started in May, accuse Diem, a Roman Catholic, of religious discrimination.

Islands. MIAMI, Fla. (AP) - Hurricane Flora, boiling westward off Cuba, was reported Sunday to have killed more than 400 persons in Haiti during a 24-hour battering. The Haitian embassy in Washngton, which gave the report, said the catastrophic loss of life was accompanied by heavy building damage and a cutoff of drinking water. Sanitary conditions were described as very bad, creating serious threats.

SAVING IS FOR EVERYONE

UNABLE TO SAVE? Bet you can't PROVE IT!

You may say, "Money slips through my fingers," Or. "My salary's too small." Or, "I've a large family to support." Most successful savers once said the same thing.

The trick is to start. Begin with what's in your wallet, Pick a small goal and save till you get there . . . a little each payday. You'll hardly miss it. Use aids such as our prepaid save-by-mail envelopes. Every dollar added makes the next easier. Every dollar earned makes saving more rewarding

Many First Federal families began trying to save just $50 for holiday shopping . . . now own a number of nice accounts: all-purpose, retirement, jointly with a son for his education, in trust till their youngest reaches 21. A family of three can own seven individual and joint accounts insured up to $10,000 each. The 70,000th dollar is as safe as the 1st.

UNABLE TO SAVE? Bet you can't PROVE IT!

You may say, "Money slips through my fingers," Or. "My salary's too small." Or, "I've a large family to support." Most successful savers once said the same thing.

The trick is to start. Begin with what's in your wallet, Pick a small goal and save till you get there . . . a little each payday. You'll hardly miss it. Use aids such as our prepaid save-by-mail envelopes. Every dollar added makes the next easier. Every dollar earned makes saving more rewarding

Many First Federal families began trying to save just $50 for holiday shopping . . . now own a number of nice accounts: all-purpose, retirement, jointly with a son for his education, in trust till their youngest reaches 21. A family of three can own seven individual and joint accounts insured up to $10,000 each. The 70,000th dollar is as safe as the 1st.

Come by soon. Let us prove saving's for everyone... particularly folks "who can't save."

FSC Plans Summer Cultural Programs

Series To Be Held July 19 To 25

FROSTBURG - President R. Bowen Hardesty, Frostburg State College, announced this week that plans are now being made to hold a series of cultural programs during the fifth week of summer school, from July 19 through July 25, 1964, at the college.

> The programs will be sponsored by the college and will be presented on the outdoor stage and in Compton Hall auditorium.

President Hardesty said the plan is being designed in order to bring visitors to Frostburg from nearby West Virginia, Pennsylvania and the eastern part of the state. He said it is anticipated that during the day, the visitors would then have an opportunity to visit historical and scenic spots in Garrett and Allegany counties. The programs to be presented will be a part of the summer activities of the music, drama and speech, art and health and physical education departments. In connection with the week a nationally known lecturer will also be brought in. Recreation for the week will be provided by the Health and Physical Education department and the Art department will plan and hold exhibits. Staged will be at least one outstanding play and there will be musical, Choral and band and string groups. Area residents in these fields will also have the opportunity to participate.

With the experience gained during next summer, it is the hope of the college to develop and plan a summer program which will develop an annual affair such as the 'Common Glory' presented annually by William and Mary College in Virginia. President Hardesty pointed out that the college has at last grown to the size that instructors from the four departments above can be employed during the summer. They will aid in the planning and production of the week's programs. It is also a possibility that the college will bring in a stock company for at least one performance. This program will be given as a regular part of the summer school being directed by Dr. Raymond McCullough who will have as Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hawkins, his staff: Dr. Ward K. Cole, head Reno, Nevada, visited Mr. and of music department: Dr. Huber

FROSTBURG - President R. Bowen Hardesty, Frostburg State College, announced this week that plans are now being made to hold a series of cultural programs during the fifth week of summer school, from July 19 through July 25, 1964, at the college.

The programs will be sponsored by the college and will be presented on the outdoor stage and in Compton Hall auditorium.

President Hardesty said the plan is being designed in order to bring visitors to Frostburg from nearby West Virginia, Pennsylvania and the eastern part of the state. He said it is anticipated that during the day, the visitors would then have an opportunity to visit historical and scenic spots in Garrett and Allegany counties. The programs to be presented

will be a part of the summer activities of the music, drama and speech, art and health and physical education departments. In connection with the week a nationally known lecturer will also be brought in. Recreation for the week will be provided by the Health and Physical Education department and the Art department will plan and hold exhibits. Staged will be at least one outstanding play and there will be musical, Choral and band and string groups. Area residents in these fields will also have the opportunity to participate.

With the experience gained during next summer, it is the hope of the college to develop and plan a summer program which will develop an annual affair such as the 'Common Glory" presented annually by William and Mary College in Virginia.

President Hardesty pointed out that the college has at last grown to the size that instructors from the four departments above can be employed during the summer. They will aid in the planning and production of the week's programs. It is also a possibility that the college will bring in a stock company for at least one performance. This program will be given as

Search For An Elusive Force

How does one go about proving a physical assumption made nearly a half century ago which has never been substantiated, but which today is accepted as a starting point by many physicists seeking an understanding of the order of the universed?

This is the problem confronting a University of Maryland research group about to begin a quest for proof of a physical force suggested by Albert Einstein in 1916.

In his equation, Einstein theorized that gravity fields-known to keep planets and their satellites in controlled positions in relation to one another-might be supplemented by a second form of gravity, one which pulsates throughout the universe much like a wave of light.

If gravity waves do exist, they would help prove such far-reaching theories as the "big boom" origin of the universe and the existence of star galaxies which emit neither light nor sound and consequently cannot be discovered by

The problem of proving the existence of gravity waves is compounded by the exceedingly weak force of gravity. So weak is the theoretical gravity wave that the device designed by the University of Maryland group to measure it will be suspended in a specially-constructed sound proof room underground to eliminate earth movement and noises. The sensitivity of the instruments connected to the device will measure a gravity-caused movement as tiny as one-millionth of a billionth of a centimeter.

Only a few years ago, no instruments existed which were sensitive enough to detect so minute a force. Even if the current test fails to pick up a gravity wave signal, it will not mean the theory has been disproved.

Instrument technology, however, may not progress sufficiently to warrant another test for 20 years. If the test is not successful, science will be disappointed but it will continue to use a theoretical gravity wave for many of its studies concerning the universe.

Divorce Figures And Politics

The public opinion polls, the reports from various regional political "pros," and a spate of recent magazine articles all combine to paint a picture of a triumphal march to the Republican Presidential nomination for Senator Barry Goldwater. Whether this means that the chances of New York's Governor Nelson Rockefeller are "strictly from Deadville." as one commentator has put it, it certainly means that the Rockefeller candidacy is going to have to start all over again from way back.

Rockefeller's hopes, obviously, center in the feeling that once the people get to know his bride Happy, the prejudice against him for having married a divorced woman who is the mother of several children will evaporate. And there is no doubt that the new Mrs. Rockefeller has a great and quite unaffected charm which communicates itself to large numbers of people in all kinds of gatherings. Nevertheless, the Rockefeller hopes clash with a reality that has evoked little comment - the reality of the statistical trend of divorces in the U.S. For a full decade now, according to the most recent figures, the divorce rate has been going down in practically every region and state from Maine to Hawaii. People have stopped approving of divorce not only in theory but in personal practice.

I was put on to this when I asked a question of a New Hampshire man about the prevalent attitudes toward divorce in New Hampshire, where the first important Republican primary test will be held next March. The divorce rate in New Hampshire, so I was told, had dropped a bit, from two per thousand of population as of 1950 to 1.8 per thousand a decade later. New Hampshire has a large Catholic population, both Irish and French Canadian, and this population has, of course, never approved of divorce. But the New Hampshire Protestants, from the Methodists to the Congregationalist, are obviously more prejudiced in favor of permanent marriages today than they were ten or more years ago, at least in a practical way.

The general trend against divorce throughout the United States as a whole involves a drop from a higher 1950 percentage than holds true for New Hampshire. But the movement from higher to lower is the same almost everywhere. In the East North Central states, which include Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, the drop is from a 1950 figure of 2.5 per thousand of population to 2.1. In the mountain states of the West, which include Nevada, the drop over the decade has gone from 5.5 per thousand to 4.2. Nevada itself had a 55.7 divorce rate per thousand in 1950; ten years later the rate had fallen to 29.6 per thousand.

The declining trend in the West South Central states (including Texas and Oklahoma) has been from 4.5 in 1950 to 3.2 in 1960. In the South Atlantic states (Virginia to Florida), the fall has been from 2.4 to 2.1. And in the Northeast outside of New England, the drop has been from 1.0 per thousand of population to

Though the practice of a people may not be an accurate indication of its philosophical attitude toward a thing, the incontestable fact that Americans are becoming less willing to accept divorce as a practical personal pattern of behavior cannot be cheering news to Rockefeller partisans.

In the very few places where the divorce rate is up, Rockefeller does not stand to gain anything useful in the way of sympathy or understanding. The one region in which divorces have increased in the 1950-60 decade is that of the East South Central states (Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, and Mississippi). Here the figures show a rise of 2.7 per thousand of population to 3.2. In Alabama the jump has been the most pronounced, from 2.9 to 5.3. But very few people in Alabama would vote for Rockefeller anyway. In the South Atlantic region, two states, Virginia and South Carolina have gone counter to the national divorce trend. The Virginia figures are 1.8 divorces per thousand of population in 1950 and 1.9 in 1960. In South Carolina, the figure has risen from 1.1 to 1.3. But neither Virginia nor South Carolina is in "Rockefeller

It would be interesting to know what the political pros will make of the trend in divorce statistics in relation to Rocky's chances for reviving his drive to the

The extent and significance of illiteracy is somehow being softpedaled in the "civil rights" controversy. The implication is that the Southern states are abusing their discretionary powers in determining the eligibility of voters. But President Kennedy, in his statement on Monday of last week, said of the applicants for induction into the military service that "the most common deficiency was apparently that they could not read or do simple arithmetic."

The President made another interesting point - namely, that there should be "serious appraisal" of "the reasons why the rejection rate on the mental tests ranges from under 5 per cent in some states to over 50 per cent in others.

This appraisal - which is to be undertaken by a task force appointed by the President - could disclose that a high percentage of both Negroes and whites from Southern states were not found qualified, and this could be an argument for better education in that area. But the inquiry shouldn't stop there. It would be interesting to discover what percentage of those in all states who failed the mental tests actually attended school long enough to complete the sixth grade and still were not able to "read or do simple arithmetic." This would provide one way to judge whether a sixth-grade education and "literacy" can be regarded as synonymous. It could also furnish evidence that the consistently higher rate of illiteracy among Negroes is not basically a matter of race as such but of individual aptitude and parental responsibility.

This spring and summer we had an epidemic of food poisoning due to salmonella organisms. From March 1 to July 8,775 cases were reported from 25 states and the District of Columbia. The problem was concentrated largely in the northeastern portion of the country and 601 of the cases were classified as hospital associated infections.

Authorities suspected at first that the epidemic was spread through contact with infected persons, such as between patient and hospital personnel. They also explored possibility that the cause was a common treatment or diagnostic procedure. But both factors were excluded and contaminated food remained as the most logical source of poison-

Study disclosed that the first 200 hospitalized patients were on restricted diets when they developed food poisoning. This suggested contaminated eggs or other poultry products as hospital diets usually include raw or undercooked eggs. These items also happen to be notorious sources of salmonella infections.

The search was narrowed to two egg farms that could have supplied certain hospitals with eggs. The organisms were found in one sample of chicken feed and four pooled samples of cracked eggs in one area. This became the basis for the warning to avoid buying and using cracked or unclean eggs.

The drug manufacturers wasted no time after Sen. Estes Kefauver's death to launch a quiet campaign to undercut his drug reform, passed only last year, to protect the public from dangerous drugs.

They persuaded Congressman Kenneth Roberts of Anniston, Ala., to introduce a bill exempting animal drugs from the new law. This would permit unapproved drugs to be used in animal feed. Kefauver discovered that these drugs could contaminate the meat. milk, and eggs that later are sold for human consumption.

man with a domed forehead and a thin sad face. His name was Cristoforo Colombo and he was born in a narrow house adjacent to the gates of the old city of Genoa. His father, Domenico Colombo was a Ligurian weaver. Very little is known of Suzanna Fontanarossa, his mother. The boy, oldest of the children, stood on the cliffs in the mornings and watched the caravels hoist sail and move, swanlike, below the edge of the horizon. The boy was bright, stubborn and adventuresome. At the University of Pavia, he studied astronomy, geometry and geography, but he had no heart for other subjects and left early to sign on a ship as a sailor. He was probably born in 1446, although Colombo was never certain. He tried weaving, but he didn't like it, and he could not self to tell his father.

At 29, he broke away from his ... signed on a merchant ship as a sailor. He had sailed before, but only with friends of his family and only to satisfy the wanderlust he felt. Now he was a professional. The ship on which he hauled sail was attacked by pirates off Cape St. Vincent. Later, he visited England and Scotland, and landed at Galway Bay, in Ireland.

At the age of 32, he lived in Portugal, where he married Felipa Moniz de Perestrello, daughter of a sea captain. Most of his time ashore was spent studying old ship's logs and charts, and talking with sailors about the mysteries of the Western Sea. The motion of the stars across the heavens convinced Colombo that the earth was not flat. How, for example, could a big star like Sirius rise in the east, set in the west, and rise again the next night in the east without coming back across the heavens?

It must be going around the earth. If so, and the earth was flat, how is it that the waters of the seas did not fall off the edge like cascades? Colombo studied navigation and, when he had mastered the subject, drew a calligrapher's notion of what the earth must be like.

The richest trade was with India, and, as no one had discovered a way around Africa, it was conducted by complicated land caravans. Colombo drew the Asian continent as huge, and he drew the round earth as smaller than it is. Thus, according to his computations, one could get to India by sailing west-southwest. He was so certain of this that, if he ever made the voyage, he knew that he would refer to the natives as Indians.

From 1475 to 1492, Cristoforo Colombo spent heart-breaking years trying to get someone to buy and outfit a small fleet. King John II of Portugal appeared to be interested, but he was more interested in another scheme to get to India by rounding Africa on the south. In private, he agreed that if this one did not work, he would try sending a caravel westward, but he would

He was tall and muscular, a do it in secret, without telling

In Spain, the Count of Medini Celi had great respect for the navigator, and took care of him for two years. The count sent Colombo to Queen Isabella, but she and Ferdinand were busy fighting the Granada Moors, and had no time to listen to schemes for getting to India. The Signora Colombo died, and the navigator married Beatriz Enriquez. A priest said that the plan was "vain and impracticable." cardinal endorsed the idea and introduced Colombo to the queen. From 1486 to 1488, he talked, but received nothing more tangible than encouragement. He went back to Lisbon, but Bartholomew Diaz was just returning from the discovery of the Cape of Good Hope, at the tip of South Africa. Portugal again turned him down. In 1491, he was back in Spain in despair. Juan Perez, confessor to the Queen, sent him back to the Spanish court, where he was again turned down. Colombo set out on foot for France, but the Marquesa de Moya begged Isabella to send a courier after him and bring him back.

At Santa Fe, he signed a contract with the Spanish Court. From April to July, he tried to sign on a crew, but even convicts refused. However, when he met the Pinzon brothers at Palos-Martin Alonzo and Vicente Yanez they became captains and Colombo became admiral. The Pinzon brothers helped him get three ships, the Nina, 40 tons, 18 men, under Vicente Pinzon; the Pinta, 50 tons, 18 men, under Martin Pinzon, the Santa Maria, 100 tons, 52 men, under Colombo.

Eighty-eight men sailed out of Palos at 8 a.m. on Friday, August 3, 1492. They headed for the Canary Islands and arrived in September. On September 13, 1492, westerly variations of the magnetic needle were noted, and the crews became afraid. At times, staring at the same placid sea day after day and week after week, they were near mutiny.

False sightings of land started on September 18th. Hopes were raised and dashed. On October 7th, the Nina fished a stick out of the ocean. It was embellished with wrought iron. On October 12, at 2 a.m. a lookout spotted what is now Watling Island in the Caribbean. Cristoforo Colombo had discovered a new world. He didn't know this. He assumed it was a new way to an old world. This is unimportant. He had insurmountable faith in himself and his dream. That is what matters . . . Copyright 1963 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Search For An Elusive Force

How does one go about proving a physical assumption made nearly a half century ago which has never been substantiated, but which today is accepted as a starting point by many physicists seeking an understanding of the order of the universed?

This is the problem confronting a University of Maryland research group about to begin a quest for proof of a physical force suggested by Albert Einstein in 1916.

In his equation, Einstein theorized that gravity fields-known to keep planets and their satellites in controlled positions in relation to one another—might be supplemented by a second form of gravity, one which pulsates throughout the universe much like a wave of light.

If gravity waves do exist, they would help prove such far-reaching theories as the "big boom" origin of the universe and the existence of star galaxies which emit neither light nor sound and consequently cannot be discovered by

The problem of proving the existence of gravity waves is compounded by the exceedingly weak force of gravity. So weak is the theoretical gravity wave that the device designed by the University of Maryland group to measure it will be suspended in a specially-constructed sound proof room underground to eliminate earth movement and noises. The sensitivity of the instruments connected to the device will measure a gravity-caused movement as tiny as one-millionth of a billionth of a centimeter.

Only a few years ago, no instruments existed which were sensitive enough to detect so minute a force. Even if the current test fails to pick up a gravity wave signal, it will not mean the theory has been disproved.

Instrument technology, however, may not progress sufficiently to warrant another test for 20 years. If the test is not successful, science will be disappointed but it will continue to use a theoretical gravity wave for many of its studies concerning the universe.

Divorce Figures And Politics

The public opinion polls, the reports from various regional political "pros," and a spate of recent magazine articles all combine to paint a picture of a triumphal march to the Republican Presidential nomination for Senator Barry Goldwater. Whether this means that the chances of New York's Governor Nelson Rockefeller are "strictly from Deadville," as one commentator has put it, it certainly means that the Rockefeller candidacy is going to have to start all over again from way back.

Rockefeller's hopes, obviously, center in the feeling that once the people get to know his bride Happy, the prejudice against him for having married a divorced woman who is the mother of several children will evaporate. And there is no doubt that the new Mrs. Rockefeller has a great and quite unaffected charm which communicates itself to large numbers of people in all kinds of gatherings. Nevertheless, the Rockefeller hopes clash with a reality that has evoked little comment — the reality of the statistical trend of divorces in the U.S. For a full decade now, according to the most recent figures, the divorce rate has been going down in practically every region and state from Maine to Hawaii. People have stopped approving of divorce not only in theory but in personal practice.

I was put on to this when I asked a question of a New Hampshire man about the prevalent attitudes toward divorce in New Hampshire, where the first important Republican primary test will be held next March. The divorce rate in New Hampshire, so I was told, had dropped a bit, from two per thousand of population as of 1950 to 1.8 per thousand a decade later. New Hampshire has a large Catholic population, both Irish and French Canadian, and this population has, of course, never approved of divorce. But the New Hampshire Protestants, from the Methodists to the Congregationalist, are obviously more prejudiced in favor of permanent marriages today than they were ten or more years ago, at least in a practical way.

The general trend against divorce throughout the United States as a whole involves a drop from a higher 1950 percentage than holds true for New Hampshire. But the movement from higher to lower is the same almost everywhere. In the East North Central states, which include Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, the drop is from a 1950 figure of 2.5 per thousand of population to 2.1. In the mountain states of the West, which include Nevada, the drop over the decade has gone from 5.5 per thousand to 4.2. Nevada itself had a 55.7 divorce rate per thousand in 1950; ten years later the rate had fallen to 29.6 per thousand The declining trend in the West South Central states (including Texas and Oklahoma) has been from 4.5 in 1950 to 3.2 in 1960. In the South Atlantic states (Virginia to Florida), the fall has been from 2.4 to 2.1. And in the Northeast outside of New England, the drop has been from 1.0 per thousand of population to

Though the practice of a people may not be an accurate indication of its philosophical attitude toward a thing, the incontestable fact that Americans are becoming less willing to accept divorce as a practical personal pattern of behavior cannot be cheering news to Rockefeller partisans.

In the very few places where the divorce rate is up, Rockefeller does not stand to gain anything useful in the way of sympathy or understanding. The one region in which divorces have increased in the 1950-60 decade is that of the East South Central states (Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, and Mississippi). Here the figures show a rise of 2.7 per thousand of population to 3.2. In Alabama the jump has been the most pronounced, from 2.9 to 5.3. But very few people in Alabama would vote for Rockefeller anyway. In the South Atlantic region, two states, Virginia and South Carolina have gone counter to the national divorce trend. The Virginia figures are 1.8 divorces per thousand of population in 1950 and 1.9 in 1960. In South Carolina, the figure has risen from 1.1 to 1.3. But neither Virginia nor South Carolina is in "Rockefeller country.

It would be interesting to know what the political pros will make of the trend in divorce statistics in relation to Rocky's chances for reviving his drive to the

But President Kennedy, in his statement on Monday of last week, said of the applicants for induction into the military service that "the most common deficiency was apparently that they could not read or do simple arithmetic.'

The President made another interesting point - namely, that there should be "serious apprais-"the reasons why the rejection rate on the mental tests ranges from under 5 per cent in some states to over 50 per cent

This appraisal — which is to be undertaken by a task force appointed by the President - could disclose that a high percentage of both Negroes and whites from Southern states were not found qualified, and this could be an argument for better education in that area. But the inquiry shouldn't stop there. It would be interesting to discover what percentage of those in all states who failed the mental tests actually attended school long enough to complete the sixth grade and still were not able to "read or do simple arithmetic." This would provide one way to judge whether a sixth-grade education and "literacy" can be regarded as synonymous. It could also furnish evidence that the consistently higher rate of illiteracy among Negroes is not basically a matter of race as such but of individual aptitude and parental responsibility.

Negotiations To Ban Atom Weapons

This makes the Rusk-Gromyko talks all the more significant. Last week the two talked for three hours at Gromyko's headquarters in New York. Afterward, Gromyko told newsmen that he thought the United States and Russia are near agreement on banning weapone from outer space.

'Agreement is quite possible Gromyko said. "In substance I think our views coincide. Whittling Drug Reforms

The drug manufacturers wasted no time after Sen. Estes Kefauver's death to launch a quiet canipaign to undercut his drug reform, passed only last year, to protect the public from dangerous drugs.

They persuaded Congressman Kenneth Roberts of Anniston, Ala., to introduce a bill exempting animal drugs from the new law. This would permit unapproved drugs to be used in animal feed. Kefauver discovered that these drugs could contaminate the meat, milk, and eggs that later are sold for human consumption.

Next week, Justice William O. Douglas, one of the most brilliant and courageous members of the Supreme Court, reaches the age when he can retire on full pension. In addition to a career fighting for the underdog, both on the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Supreme Court, Douglas has written a dozen or so books, traveled to some of the most remote corners of the world, and was in the running for Vice President against Harry Truman in 1944.

But Douglas is restless, has long toyed with the idea of getting off the Court. This restlessness has increased since he fell in love with an Allegheny College co-ed, divorced his wife and remarried last summer. As a result, there have been rumblings from Dixiecrat Senators about a probe of Justice Douglas. How serious these threats are is difficult to as-

He was tall and man with a domed forehead and a thin sad face. His name was Cristoforo Colombo and he was born in a narrow house adjacent to the gates of the old city of Genoa. His father. Domenico Colombo was a Ligurian weaver. Very little is known of Suzanna Fontanarossa, his mother. The boy, oldest of the children, stood on the cliffs in the mornings and watched the caravels hoist sail and move, swanlike, below the edge of the horizon. The boy was bright, stubborn and adventuresome. At the University of Pavia, he studied astronomy, geometry and geography, but he had no heart for other subjects and left early to sign on a ship as a sailor. He was probably born in 1446, although Colombo was never certain. He tried weaving, but he didn't like it, and he could not self to tell his father. At 29, he broke away from his ... signed on a merchant ship as a sailor. He had sailed before, but only with friends of his family and only to satisfy the wanderlust he felt. Now he was a professional. The ship on which he hauled sail was attacked by pirates off Cape St. Vincent. Later, he visited England and Scotland. and landed at Galway Bay, in Ireland.

At the age of 32, he lived in Portugal, where he married Felipa Moniz de Perestrello, daughter of a sea captain. Most of his time ashore was spent studying old ship's logs and charts, and talking with sailors about the mysteries of the Western Sea. The motion of the stars across the heavens convinced Colombo that the earth was not flat. How, for example, could a big star like Sirius rise in the east, set in the west, and rise again the next night in the east without coming back across the heavens?

It must be going around the earth. If so, and the earth was flat, how is it that the waters of the seas did not fall off the edge like cascades? Colombo studied navigation and, when he had mastered the subject, drew a calligrapher's notion of what the earth must be like.

The richest trade was with India, and, as no one had discovered a way around Africa, it was conducted by complicated land caravans. Colombo drew the Asian continent as huge, and he drew the round earth as smaller than it is. Thus, according to his computations, one could get to India by sailing west-southwest. He was so certain of this that, if he ever made the voyage, he knew that he would refer to the natives as

From 1475 to 1492, Cristoforo Colombo spent heart-breaking years trying to get someone to buy and outfit a small fleet. King John II of Portugal appeared to be interested, but he was more interested in another scheme to get to India by rounding Africa on the south. In private, he agreed that if this one did not work, he would try sending a caravel westward, but he would a do it in secret, without telling Colombo. In Spain, the Count of Medini Celi had great respect for the navigator, and took care of him for two years. The count sent Colombo to Queen Isabella, but she and Ferdinand were busy fighting the Granada Moors, and for getting to India. The Signora Colombo died, and the navigator married Beatriz Enriquez. A priest said that the plan was "vain and impracticable." cardinal endorsed the idea and introduced Colombo to the queen. From 1486 to 1488, he talked, but received nothing more tangible than encouragement. He went back to Lisbon, but Bartholomew

Diaz was just returning from the discovery of the Cape of Good Hope, at the tip of South Africa. Portugal again turned him down. In 1491, he was back in Spain in despair. Juan Perez. confessor to the Queen, sent him back to the Spanish court, where he was again turned down. Colombo set out on foot for France, but the Marquesa de Moya begged Isabella to send a courier after him and bring him back. At Santa Fe, he signed a contract with the Spanish Court. From April to July, he tried to sign on a crew, but even convicts refused. However, when he met the Pinzon brothers at Palos-Martin Alonzo and Vicente Yanez they became captains and Colombo became admiral. The Pinzon brothers helped him get three ships, the Nina, 40 tons, 18 men, under Vicente Pinzon; the Pinta, 50 tons, 18 men, under Martin Pinzon, the Santa Maria, 100 tons, 52 men, under Colombo

Eighty-eight men sailed out of Palos at 8 a.m. on Friday, August 3, 1492. They headed for the Canary Islands and arrived in September. On September 13, 1492, westerly variations of the magnetic needle were noted, and the crews became afraid. At times, staring at the same placid sea day after day and week after week, they were near mutiny.

False sightings of land started on September 18th. Hopes were raised and dashed. On October 7th, the Nina fished a stick out of the ocean. It was embellished with wrought iron. On October 12, at 2 a.m. a lookout spotted what is now Watling Island in the Caribbean.

Cristoforo Colombo had discovered a new world. He didn't know this. He assumed it was a new way to an old world. This is unimportant. He had insurmountable faith in himself and his dream. That is what matters . . .

says Mrs. Leon G. Schraum, of Wiley Ford, W.Va.

Mrs. Schraum points out that electric heat has added wonderful new comfort and convenience to their home, and that costs are surprisingly low. Of particular benefit, is the fact that electric heat requires no furnace, and thus no yearly maintenance problems or expense. Electric heat is truly the answer to outmoded home heating systems . . . and existing homes can be converted both easily and quickly. Why not investigate electric heat for your home?

Dodgers Defeat Yankees, 2-1, To Sweep Series In Four Straight

Pepitone Error In Seventh Sets Up Winning Run

Howard Homers To Give Koufax Fifth Inning Lead

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)-The underdog Los Angeles Dodgers humbled the proud New York Yankees by sweeping the World Series in four straight games, winning the fourth Sunday 2-1 on Sandy Koufax's pitching, Frank Howard's mighty homer and a glaring Yankee error

Adding to the Yanks' humiliation was the way the Dodgers won the finale. Joe Pepitone failed to hold Clete Boyer's throw from third base after Boyer made a leaping stab of Jim Gilliam's hard smash in the seventh. Gilliam scooted all the way to third as the ball caromed into right field foul territory and scored the run that earned each Dodger nearly $13,000 on Willie Davis' sacrifice fly to deep right center.

Home runs by Frank Howard, a 450-foot blast into the second deck in left field in the fifth, and a matching 400-foot home run by Mickey Mantle of the Yanks in the seventh had been the only scores in a tight duel between lefties Koufax and Whitey Ford. Victims Of Own Weapon

This was the first time the mighty Yanks, who patented the four-straight killer punch by doing it six times, had been victim of their own weapon. Actually, the Yanks didn't win a game in the 1922 set with the New York Giants but they did manage to get a tie in the second game, forcing a replay and a fifth game before succumbing without a victory.

Koufax was not up to his opening day form when he set a record with 15 strikeouts but he was rough and ready at all times. When he fanned eight Yanks, he broke the record for series of seven games or less, set by Hal Newhouser of Detroit at 22 in 1945. The new mark is 23. Dodger pitchers, so dominant all the way in this Series, set a record for a fourgame set by fanning 37 Yanks. The old mark was 29 by St. Louis' Cardinals in 1928

Bobby Richardson opened the sixth hit off Koufax, but Sandy blew a third called strike past both Tom Tresh and Mickey Man-

Dodgers Defeat Yankees, 2-1, To Sweep Series In Four Straight

Pepitone Error In Seventh Sets Up Winning Run

Howard Homers To Give Koufax Fifth Inning Lead

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer LOS ANGELES (AP)-The underdog Los Angeles Dodgers humbled the proud New York Yankees by sweeping the World Series in four straight games, winning the fourth Sunday 2-1 on Sandy Koufax's pitching, Frank Howard's mighty homer and a glaring Yankee error

Adding to the Yanks' humiliation was the way the Dodgers won the finale. Joe Pepitone failed to hold Clete Boyer's throw from third base after Boyer made a leaping stab of Jim Gilliam's hard smash in the seventh. Gilliam scooted all the way to third as the ball caromed into right field foul territory and scored the run that earned each Dodger nearly $13,000 on Willie Davis' sacrifice fly to deep right center. Home runs by Frank Howard. a 450-foot blast into the second

the seventh had been the only scores in a tight duel between lefties Koufax and Whitey Ford. Victims Of Own Weapon This was the first time the mighty Yanks, who patented the four-straight killer punch by doing it six times, had been victim of their own weapon. Actually, the Yanks didn't win a game in the 1922 set with the New York Giants but they did manage to get a tie in the second game, forcing a replay and a fifth game before succumbing without a victory. Koufax was not up to his opening day form when he set a record with 15 strikeouts but he was rough and ready at all times. When he fanned eight Yanks, he broke the record for series of seven games or less, set by Hal Newhouser of Detroit at 22 in 1945. The new mark is 23. Dodger pitchers, so dominant all the way in this Series, set a record for a fourgame set by fanning 37 Yanks. The old mark was 29 by St. Louis' Cardinals in 1928.

The first half had the standing- kick) room-only crowd of 48,998 yawning as neither team could muster much of an attack. Bill Wade wasn't on target for the Bears and completed only 5 of 18 pass attempts.

Johnny Unitas completed 13 of 22 but couldn't get the Colts marching. A Unitas to Lennie Moore pass took the Colts to the Chicago 35, Baltimore's deepest penetration at that point. The Colts lined up quickly, but the gun went off before the ball was snapped and a 42-yard field goal attempt by Jim Martin that sailed through the bars didn't count.

Midway in the third quarter the Colts put on a drive when Jerry Logan returned a punt 23 yards to the Bear 43. The Colts marched to the 9 and settled for a 16-yard Cornell 24, Lehigh 0 field goal by Martin.

Bukich Takes Over

Wade again failed to move the Bears and Bukich took over. The veteran quarterback drove the Bears to the Baltimore 21 but rookie Bob Jencks, who missed a field goal attempt from the 44 in the first half, missed again from the 28.

The next time the Bears gto the ball, Bukich moved them from their 20 to the payoff touchdown and when the Bears gained control of the Baltimore fumble and failed in a bid for another touchdown, LeClerc was called in to pick up three insurance points. 0 0 3 0-3 0 0 0 10-10

2 Door Hardtop Here is another Potomac Motors Special. This is a local 1-owner car that formerly belonged to a doctor who kept this car in tip-top condition. It has a light green finish and a two-tone green interior that looks like new. The equipment includes automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, power windows, power seats, heater, defroster, large radio (rear seat speaker), seat belts, remote-controlled outside mirror, tinted glass, plus the many small accessories. This car has only 19,000 miles on it and we have checked it thoroughly and know it will be trouble-free. It will also carry the 1 year G & W Warranty that is good across the country. If you want a car like new be sure to see this beauty as we have it priced for a

Red, white and blue nest egg

If you're like most Americans, you probably intend to use your Savings Bonds as a down payment on a house, to help send a child to college or otherwise upgrade your standard of living.

You don't need to feel one whit less patriotic because of this.

The fact that you and tens of millions of other Americans buy and hold U.S. Savings Bonds helps Uncle Sam manage his financial affairs better and puts him in a position to be a stronger voice and a stronger power in the free world.

And the fact that you and these other millions of Americans have accumulated the savings you have —46 billions in E and H Savings Bonds alone—is one of the reasons why Americans are financially strong and reliant. And their individual strength is the strength of the nation.

When the communists make one of their favorite statements—that they're going to "bury us" economically—your savings and your support of your country are mighty powerful answers. Keep building both with U.S. Savings Bonds.

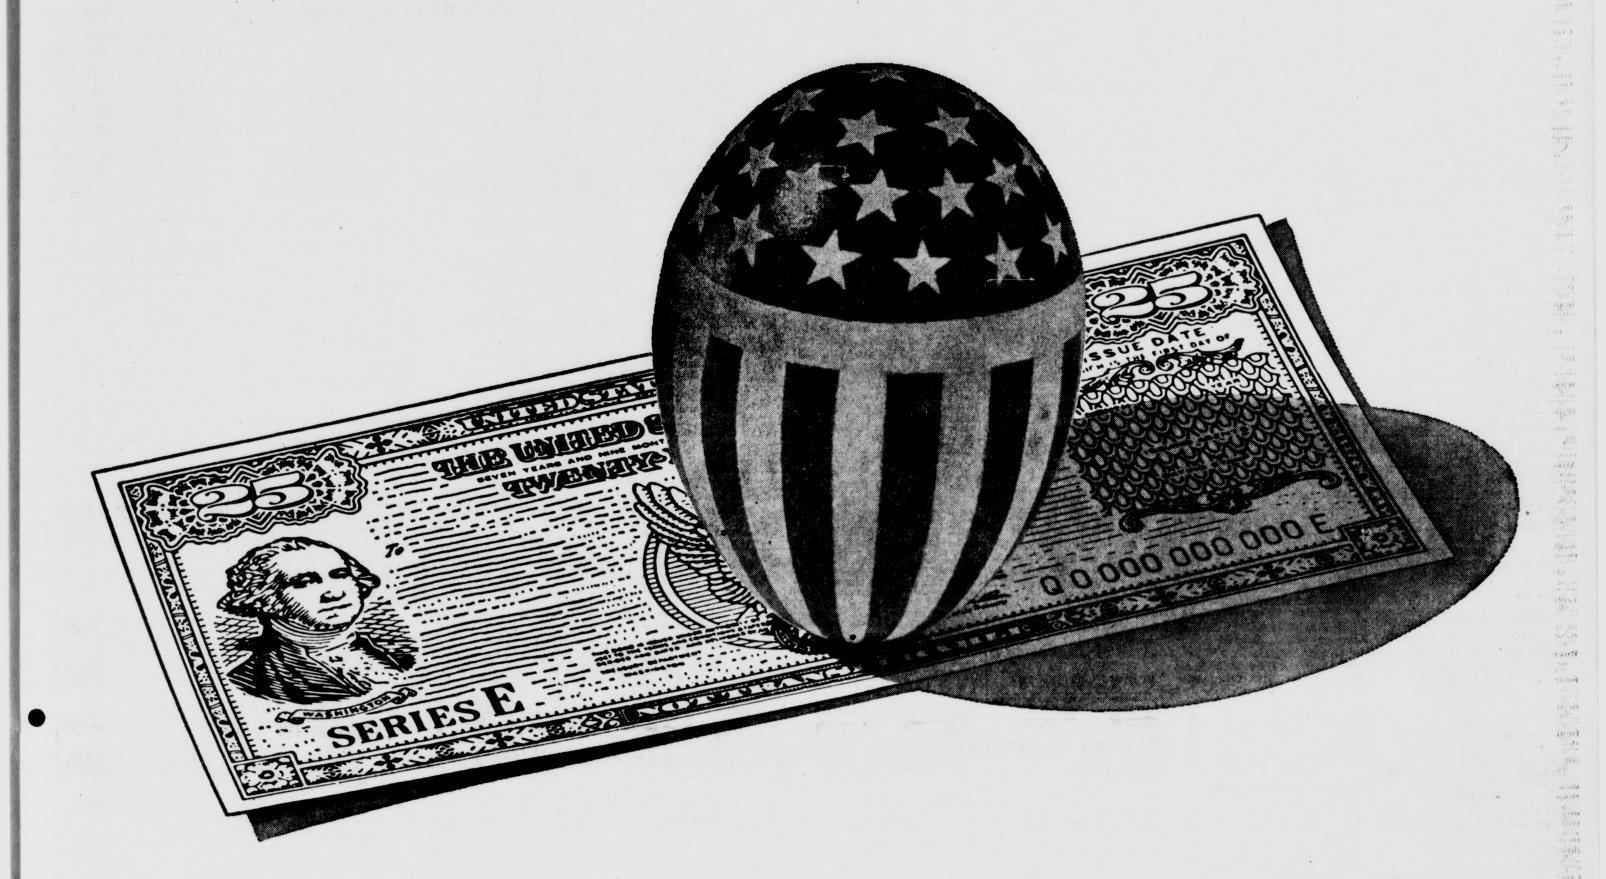

Quick facts about
U. S. Savings Bonds

- You get $4 for every $3 at maturity
- You can get your money anytime
- Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed, or stolen
- You can save automatically on Payroll Savings
